BROAD PERSPECTIVE

EVOLUTION OF INDIAN POLITICAL PARTIES POST INDEPENDENCE:
1947-1967
BROAD PERSPECTIVE

EVOLUTION OF POLITICAL PARTIES MEANT EVOLUTION OF CONGRESS IN THE BEGINNING:

- After independence was achieved, congress found itself without a unifying purpose. With R. Prasad as president of the country & P. Tandon as president of Congress there was a growing Hindu tint of the party, which led to departure of some of its most effervescent leaders.
- In 1948 Socialist Party was formed with J.P. Narayan & in 1951, KMPP (Kisan Majdoor Praja Party) with J.B. Kriplani. These parties accused congress of betraying its commitment to the poor. They claimed to stand for the ideals of old Gandhian congress.

- The party also faced external challenges from :
  1. Jana Sangh which sought to consolidate India's largest religious grouping, the Hindus into one solid voting bank.
  2. Hindu parties even more orthodox than Jana Sangh- Hindu Mahasabha & Ram Rajya Parishad.
  3. CPI & its many splinter groups of the left.
  4. Regional parties based on affiliation of ethnicity & religion: Dravida Kazhagam (Tamil pride), Akalis in Punjab, Jharkhand Party demanding separate state for tribals.

FIRST ELECTIONS IN INDEPENDENT INDIA

- 1951-52 saw the first general election of India. These were the first ever polls to be held under the new constitution, drawn up with the British parliamentary system as a model.
- However, the biggest let down of the polls was that about 176 million people were eligible to vote and an abysmally low figure of 15% amongst them were literate.
- Congress passed the first litmus test of democracy by winning a landslide victory. The party won 364 of the 489 seats in the parliament.
- Congress, however, suffered some unexpected setbacks in three southern states – Tamil Nadu (Madras), Andhra Pradesh (Hyderabad) and Kerala (Travancore) – where the party failed to win majority in the face of strong support of the Communist Party.

Second Elections

- Nehru led Congress to another victory in the 1957 polls.
- This time North India remained unchallenged for congress as Jana Sangh & socialists were in disarray due to departure of their charismatic leaders.
- Rest of the country the challenges had increased multifold with: Gantantra Parishad in Orissa, Bombay, DMK in Tamil Nadu & CPI in Kerala gaining strength.
- It was the first time a Communist party anywhere in the world won a democratic mandate.
- Shortly before his death Ambedkar decided to float a new party- the Republic party of India.

THE ROUT..

- The picture changed radically in 1967 elections.
- Of the 16 states, only eight returned Congress to power with absolute majorities in the state legislatures.
- Regional Grievances

The general slump in the popularity of the Congress had been accentuated in different regions by regional grievances. In Madras, the main issue that swept the Dravida Munnetra Kazhagam to power was fear of the imposition of Hindi as the sole official language of India. In Punjab, the fall in Congress stock was largely due to squabbles attending the partition of the two states. In Uttar Pradesh and Delhi, the Jan Sangh gathered a large number of votes through its agitation against cow slaughter

- ◉ Despite these regional issues and mounting popular disenchantment with its rule, Congress would not have fared as badly as it did had its own house been in order.
- ◉ Twenty years of uninterrupted enjoyment of power had made it smug and arrogant. One reflection of this could be seen in their uncompromising attitude towards the dissidents inside their party, the continued and relentless exclusion of the latter from all position of authority.
- ◉ The bitter infighting that followed this led to large-scale expulsions and resignations and in West Bengal, Orissa and Bihar ex-Congressmen formed parties which contested the official Congress in the elections.
- ◉ In other states, where no such extreme development took place, Congressmen often allied secretly with opposition candidates to defeat candidates belonging to rival factions of their own party.

- Bangla Congress, Jana Congress, Jana Kranti Dal and Swatantra Party gained big in this period . The first three parties were breakaway units of the Congress and shared much of its moderate approach to social and economic issues, Swatantra Party was different in that it did not believe in economic planning. But then it was not communal and did not have any extra-territorial loyalty like the Communists.
- Their emergence as important political parties could have been said to be very hopeful sign for Indian democracy.

EVOLUTION OF INDIAN POLITICAL PARTIES POST INDEPENDENCE:
1967-89
BROAD PERSPECTIVE

Post Independence Period - 1967 to 1989

1967-69- uneasy transition marked by the emergence of a multi party situation

1969-75- period of new consensus and of increasing inter party conflicts

1975-77 - emergency authoritarian period

1977-80- Janta phase of coalitional politics

1980-89 - new phase of tussle between the congress in the centre and regional Parties in the states.

Continued....

- 1967 elections- Congress won only 40% of votes and 54% of seats
-Lost power in 8 states.
- Land reforms in late 1950s ,emergence of new land owners and increased participation of peasant class attributed to the decline of Congress.
- Indira Gandhi used the Congress dominance to make the centre stronger and the controversial 42nd Amendment to the constitution made centre more powerful at the expense of the states.

- 1971-Gandhi led congress party won on grounds of policies like garibi hatao, abolition Of Privy Purse and nationalisation of 14 largest banks.
- 1971- grand alliance between Bharatiya Jan Sangh, Congress(O) and SSP (Samyukta Socialist Party).
- Pyramidal decision making, autocratic functioning, rising corruption, centralized and weakened power led to defeat of Congress in 1977 elections.

➤ 1975- JP movement

➤ 1973 oil crisis, challenges of drought , strikes, protests, massive political opposition paralyzed the government which ultimately led to the imposition of “internal emergency”.

1977-Janta party came to power

1979- split in Janta party on the grounds of dual membership-downfall of government -Mrs Gandhi returned to power

1980- BJP

1984- Bahujan Samaj Party

1985- Asom Gana Parishad

- Rajiv Gandhi government tried to centralise powers by introducing Panchayati Raj Bill and Jawahar Rozgar Yojana

EVOLUTION OF INDIAN POLITICAL PARTIES POST INDEPENDENCE:
1990 ONWARDS
BROAD PERSPECTIVE

REGIONAL PARTY

What is a regional party?

- ◉ Regional party propagates the ideology of regionalism or thrives on invocation of regional pride. e.g. TDP, DMK
- ◉ However, another type of party can be incorporated in the regional party list:-
Parties which enjoy considerable support only in one state. They may not emphasize regionalist outlook and may have an all India prospective but have limited regional reach.
E.g. revolutionary socialist party in W.B

RISE OF REGIONAL PARTIES

- When the interest of particular region are not properly safeguarded.
  - E.g. DMK, ADMK, national conference J&K
- Due to ethnic, racial and religious orthodoxy
- Language issues
  - e.g. DMK, ADMK, TPS
- Internal conflicts of the big national parties

RISE OF REGIONAL PARTIES

In Indian context there were three main reasons responsible for the rise of regional parties

- ❑ Demise of Nehru
- ❑ Proclamation of emergency
- ❑ Formation of Janta Party

SOME EXAMPLES

- DMK and ADMK almost eliminated INC from electoral race in T.N since 1962
- TDP proved a strong opponent from 1985 onwards
- CPI(M) which is the left front of W.B. accounted for reasonably high vote share since 1977
- Shiromani Akali Dal emerged as a single largest party in 1972, 1977 and 1985
- Jammu & Kashmir National Conference formed by Sheikh Abdulah won every election from 1977 upto 2002.

A CRITICAL ANALYSIS OF RISE
AND ROLE OF
REGIONAL PARTIES
IN INDIA

Gradually Many of the leading power brokers in contemporary Indian politics hail from regional parties

The exponential increase in the number of parties contesting elections, particularly over the past two decades, and the shrinking margins of victory in parliamentary elections are direct results of the emergence of new regional power centers

DO REGIONAL PARTIES UNDERMINE NATIONAL PARTIES ?

Source: Election Commission of India

After a period of unprecedented growth in the standing of regional parties during the late 1980s and early 1990s, the pattern of electoral competition at the national level has achieved a surprisingly stable balance of power.

The aggregate vote shares won by the two truly national parties and “the rest,” meaning primarily regional parties, in the past five elections illustrate strikingly that the respective popularity of these two groups is in a rather steady holding pattern.

Rise of regional players directly threatens the status of national players overlooks the possibility that regional parties can also hurt one another.

In India's winner-take-all electoral system, where victories are possible with a small minority of votes in any given constituency, increasing levels of political competition have led to a greater fragmentation of the vote.

For example, the electoral impact of the Maharashtra Navnirman Sena party, which took votes away from its key regional rival, the Shiv Sena, in the state of Maharashtra. And competition between upstart and established Telugu regional parties in Andhra Pradesh redounded to the benefit of the Congress Party.

DO REGIONAL PARTIES RULE THE REGIONS ????

GeoCurrents Map
Note: Boundaries Stylized

2014 Indian Election
States Dominated by a
Single Regional Party

ADVANTAGES

- ◉ Greater representation of local peoples aspirations at the national level.
- ◉ Establishing true Federal structure
- ◉ Preventing the authoritarian intentions of the single party dominance
- ◉ More funds for their state and hence their development
- ◉ Keeps in check, any irresponsible acts of governance
- ◉ Regional parties on the contrary will oppose any move by the central government which they believe is against the interests of its people
- ◉ Help in preserving and promoting the Culture and traditions of their land.

DISADVANTAGES

- ◉ Use their power to stall the development activities of the Centre
- ◉ Divide the people of different states on the lines of language, culture, traditions etc
- ◉ Serious issues like “India’s foreign policy” will be influenced and compromised by the “coalition dharma”
- ◉ Local parties that are part of the ruling coalition government will influence the annual budget
- ◉ Disputes between the states that are ruled by the local parties becomes difficult to settle
- ◉ Subsidising more and more basic necessities thereby making the people lethargic

CONCLUSION

- ◉ By weighing the advantages and disadvantages, we can clearly say that multi-party system does more good than harm.
- ◉ Some disadvantages like transfer of more funds to a particular state are actually advantages in disguise
- ◉ The major concern emerging from the multi-party system is its inherent threat to the unity and security of the country
- ◉ People are the masters in Democracy, they decide how they want to be governed
- ◉ Every system will have the loopholes, it's the number and the pluggability of loopholes that distinguish each system from the other in terms of efficiency.
